

Department of Economics Summer 2023 Research Grants

The Economics Department will offer several Princeton University undergraduate Economics majors the opportunity to pursue independent research in economics under the guidance of a faculty member in the department. Applicants are responsible to find a faculty sponsor and design their own project.

To apply, you must submit a research proposal (up to three pages) with an explanation of your planned research agenda. The proposal should include references to the related literature and, if applicable, data sources.

Selected students are expected to work full-time over the summer on their research project; they may not work at an internship at the same time. They should report to their faculty advisor once a week. At the end of the summer, each student must submit a five-page summary of their project to Gina Holland, the Economics Undergraduate Program Manager.

Each successful applicant will receive a stipend of $600 per week for a maximum of 8 weeks. If you apply for and are offered multiple sources of funding for your summer research, you can only accept funds from one source for the same expense. Double dipping is considered a violation of the grant contract.

Application Deadline: April 30, 2023.

Application package:

1. Research proposal
2. Copy of transcript
3. Statement of special circumstances (if relevant)

Submit all materials on SAFE: <https://studentfunding.princeton.edu/>

These summer research grants are partially funded by a generous gift in the memory of Louis Rukeyser '54, 1933-2006, the eminent economic and financial commentator and host of TV finance programs on PBS and CNBC.